

Doing good is part of our code.

Most people don't know this, but we're made by a non-profit. It means our priorities are a little different.

For starters, we believe in principle over profit.

That transparency is infinitely better than secrecy.

We believe that the web is more cared for than owned.

That it's a resource to be tended to rather than a commodity to be sold.

We believe our job is to create innovations that put you front, center and squarely in the driver's seat.

And we believe that the only way to serve the greater good is to answer to no one but you.

It's not just the right thing to do. It's our code.

mozilla fox

